FINANCIAL POLICY

I am committed to your treatment being successful. Please understand that payment of your bill is considered to be your obligation in exchange for my providing you and/or your family with services. The following is a statement of my Financial Policy which I require you to read and sign prior to any treatment.

Regarding Insurance and Payment:
Your insurance policy is a contract between you and your insurance company. I am not a party to that contract. For the insurance plans for which I am a participating provider your claim will be processed by Sharon Boris, LCSW, LLC or D.A.S. Billing Solutions, Inc. which may include electronic submission. I accept cash and cheques and credit cards.

In the event you do not have insurance or you are a member of a plan in which I do NOT participate, payment is due at the time of service. Payment is requested at the time of service, unless we have another agreement. In the event your account becomes delinquent (past due 90 days) a collection agency will be used to bring you account current.

Missed appointments:
If cancellation is necessary, the patient needs to notify the office at lest 24 hours before the appointment time. I hold this appointment time open specifically for you so it is in courtesy to other patients who need appointment times that you call in the given time frame. The first time you do not call 24 hours before your scheduled appointment to cancel, a $50.00 late cancellation fee will be charged. Subsequent late cancellations or missed appointments will be charged at the full fee. These types of charges are not billable to insurance companies, as they are not covered.

Thank you for understanding our Financial Policy. Please let us know if you have any questions or concerns.

I have read the Financial Policy. I understand and agree to this Financial Policy.

HIPAA FORM and Notice of Privacy Practices

This notice describes how health information about you maybe used and disclosed and how you may get access to this information. It is effective April 14, 2003, and applies to all protected health information (PHI) contained in your health records maintained by us. We have the following duties regarding maintenance, use and disclosure of your health records:

1. We are required by law to maintain the privacy of the protected health information in your records and to provide you with this notice of our legal duties and privacy practices with respect to that information.

2. We are required to abide by the terms of this notice currently in effect.

3. We reserve the right to change the terms of this notice at any time, making the new provisions effective for all health information and records that we have and continue to maintain. All changes in this notice will be prominently displayed and available at our office.

There are a number of situations in which we may use or disclose to other persons or entities your confidential health information. Certain uses and disclosures will require you to sign an acknowledgment that you received this notice of privacy practices. These include treatment, payment, and healthcare operations. Any use or disclosure of your protected health information required for anything other than treatment, payment or healthcare operations requires you to sign an authorization. Certain disclosures that are required by law, or under emergency circumstances, may be made without your acknowledgment nor authorization. Under any circumstances we will use or disclose only the minimum amount of information necessary from your medical records to accomplish the intended purpose of this disclosure.

We will attempt in good faith to obtain your signed acknowledgment that you received this notice to use and disclose your confidential medical information for the following purposes. These examples are not meant to be exhausted but to describe the types of uses and disclosures that need be made by our office once you have provided consent.

Treatment: Examples include the use of your health information to make decisions about provision, coordination or management of your health care. Another example may be sharing health information with another healthcare provider who we need to consult with in respect to your care.

Payment: we may need to use or disclose information in your health record to obtain reimbursement from you, your health care insurance carrier or from another insurer for our services rendered to you. This may include eligibility of coverage, pre-authorization or certification or review of services for the purpose of reimbursement. This information may be used for billing, claims management and collection.

There are certain circumstances under which we may use or disclose your health information without first obtaining your acknowledgment or authorization. Those circumstances generally involve public health and oversight activities, law-enforcement activities, judicial administrative proceedings and in the event of death. Specifically we may be required to report to certain agencies information concerning certain communicable diseases and sexually transmitted diseases. We may also be required to report instances of suspected or documented abuse, neglect or domestic violence. We are required to report to appropriate agencies and law-enforcement officials information that you or another person is in immediate threat or danger to health or safety
